Every card names the moment you would reach for it, asks you one question, and then shows you what an answer could sound like said out loud. That last part is the bit nobody prints. Knowing what you feel is not the hard bit. Getting it across the room is.

Nothing here has to be finished in one go. Pass is a whole answer, stopping is not the same as giving up, and the cards that keep coming back are the ones worth bringing to a session.

Printing this

Print single sided on the heaviest paper your printer will take. Cut along the light grey lines. Nine cards to a page, 75 cards in all, plus blank cards at the back for the ones only you two need.

LAUREN LYNCH, AMHSW · GOTTMAN METHOD LEVEL 2 · TRAINED WITH ESTHER PEREL · A QUEER LED PRACTICE

Before you start

These cards are for ordinary relationship conflict. They are not a tool for coercive control, intimidation, threats, stalking, sexual pressure or violence. If someone is using them to press you, put them down.

A settled nervous system is not proof that someone is right. A strong emotional response is not proof that someone is wrong. Naming a cycle does not make responsibility equal, and if only one of you can start it or stop it, it is not a shared pattern.

Pass is a whole answer. So is “I cannot find it in my body”, and so is not tonight. Nobody has to earn their way out of a card.

No one should be calmed, therapised or culturally pressured into staying in a conversation they do not feel safe in.

How a round works

One card each. Answer in the first person, about yourself. The other person says back what they heard before they answer anything of their own. Then swap.

Let the deck choose, or deal three. Either turn one over blind, or have the other person pick three they would like to hear and choose which one you answer. Their curiosity, your choice.

Say it, write it, or take it away. Not everyone thinks out loud. Write the answer instead, or keep the card and bring it back tomorrow.

Two protected minutes. Optional. Two minutes where the other person does not speak. Useful when one of you is quicker with words.

Choose the suits first. Take out what you do not want tonight before you start, so nobody has to remove a card in front of anybody. The wanting starts out of the deck.

Keep the ones that landed. Set them aside. They are good ones to bring to a session, and good ones to ask again in six months.

The seven suits

Notice what arrived

Before the argument has a topic, something has already landed in the body. Notice the cue, the meaning that arrived with it, and what walked into the room with you that was never about the two of you. If you cannot find it in your body, that is an answer.

Pause without disappearing

Stopping is allowed. Vanishing is not. Say the conversation matters, name how long you need, set a real time to come back. If that time changes, update rather than disappear. The return plan exists so silence is not a weapon. It is not a promise to go back into a conversation you do not feel safe in.

Reach again

Bring one truth without making it the only truth. Name what you protected, listen for difference, own the impact even where you did not intend it, and ask for one thing clearly. A reach is an ask, an offer, a commitment or a disclosure. It is not a verdict.

The wanting

Wanting is not a fixed amount that one of you has and another lacks. It shows up between you, and it answers to context: rest, privacy, resentment, safety, how you have been spoken to all week. For many people it arrives after something good has started rather than before it, across genders. How often is a poor measure of anything, and aiming for extraordinary can make it harder to reach for at all. Different arousal patterns and different sensory needs are not automatically incompatibility. Often they are two languages. This is built on curiosity, not compliance. Nothing here is a negotiation: a no needs no reason, does not have to be earned back, and nobody has to explain a body in order to keep a partner. Every card in this suit can be passed, and a pass needs no reason. Nobody deals this suit at anybody. If what comes up is not a communication problem, it is worth saying out loud to someone outside the two of you.

Name what took over

No one is the pattern. The pattern is what happens between you. But naming a cycle does not make responsibility equal. Power, fear, freedom, safety and impact still matter, and if only one of you can start it or stop it, it is not a shared pattern.

Find a way back to yourself

Use what genuinely helps, not what is supposed to: support beneath you, cool water, movement, rhythm, a familiar texture, quiet company, culture, community, prayer, Country or place. Breath is optional. If you cannot find it in your body, that is an answer too. Country is relationship, not a wellness prop. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people can define cultural connection for themselves. If this is not your cultural practice, stay with your own everyday relationship with place without borrowing ceremony or language that is not yours.

The wider field

Not a step. The room you are already in. Body, family and kin, community, culture and identity, Country and place, spirit and meaning. Two people are never only two people, and some of what is in the room was put there long before either of you.

NOTICE WHAT ARRIVED

Three sentences in, and your body is already ahead of you.

Where does it land in my body first, before I have a word for it?

TRY

My jaw goes before my mind does. I have been braced a full minute. Slow me down if you see it.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

NOTICE WHAT ARRIVED

Something small has landed far harder than it should have.

What did my body just get me ready to do?

TRY

It got me ready to defend something before I knew what. Give me a minute and I will tell you which part landed.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

NOTICE WHAT ARRIVED

One of you is already certain what the other one meant.

The story I told myself in that moment was...

TRY

...that you had already decided, and I was being informed. That might be wrong, and I still need to say it.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

NOTICE WHAT ARRIVED

A feeling arrives faster and bigger than the moment seems to warrant.

Is this old, is it happening now, or is it both?

TRY

This is old, and it is also happening. I need you to hear both halves of that.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

NOTICE WHAT ARRIVED

You have both sat down and the conversation has not begun yet.

What walked in with me tonight that was never about us?

TRY

Four hours sleep and a call from my mother. Mine, not yours, and it is in the room.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

NOTICE WHAT ARRIVED

A hard week, and you are hunting for something that was not hard.

A glimmer from this week: one second where I felt close to you...

TRY

You put my cup down beside me without a word. I have thought about it twice since. Do more of that.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

NOTICE WHAT ARRIVED

You have read the same message four times looking for the tone.

The thing I decided that message meant was...

TRY

...that you were finished with me. I read it four times to prove it. Tell me what you meant and I will believe you.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

NOTICE WHAT ARRIVED

Someone asks how you feel and there is nothing there to report.

If I cannot find a feeling, what can I find? A picture, a word, a temperature.

TRY

No feeling. Static, and one cold hand. That is all I have and it is real. Sit with that and I will find more.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

NOTICE WHAT ARRIVED

You have been apart all day and the first ten minutes go wrong.

What was I still carrying in the first ten minutes of seeing you?

TRY

The whole day was still on me and none of it was yours. Give me ten minutes and you get me properly.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

NAME WHAT TOOK OVER You have had this fight before and you both know your lines. Say our loop in two or three verbs. Mine first. TRY I chase, you go still. Then I chase harder and you go further out. Can we catch it at the first step? PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	NAME WHAT TOOK OVER The topic keeps changing and the feeling never does. The thing I do not have to say while we keep arguing is... TRY As long as we are arguing about the dishes, I do not have to say I am frightened. I am saying it now. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	NAME WHAT TOOK OVER The two of you are lining up who did what, and when. When I fear losing you, I protect myself by ___. How does that land on you? TRY I go reasonable and start organising things. I have never actually asked you how that lands. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER
NAME WHAT TOOK OVER You have just defended yourself and it did not help. What am I protecting when I do that, and what am I longing for? TRY My dignity. And underneath it, to be wanted without having to ask twice. So I am asking once. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	NAME WHAT TOOK OVER One of you keeps getting read the wrong way. What do I do that might have come to mean “not now” to you? TRY I pick up my phone while you are still talking. I think it files as: not important. Does it? PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	NAME WHAT TOOK OVER It is always the same one of you who says it out loud. Which of us usually names it first, and what does that cost them? TRY It is always me, and it costs me looking like the one with the problem. Could you go first next time? PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER
NAME WHAT TOOK OVER You keep finding your part, and nothing on the other side changes. Am I in a pattern with you, or managing around you? TRY I have changed six things this year. I cannot name one that changed back. I want to look at that. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	NAME WHAT TOOK OVER The same word keeps ending the conversation. The word I use when I want it to stop is... TRY ...“fine”. It is not fine, it is a door closing. If you hear it, say you noticed and let me decide. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	NAME WHAT TOOK OVER One of you always has the better sentence and the other one goes quiet. In these, am I the one with the words, or the one who goes quiet? TRY You win on words every time, so I go quiet and take it elsewhere. That is not agreement. Slow down and let me get there. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

PAUSE WITHOUT DISAPPEARING Before a conversation you already know will be hard. What do I need in the first two minutes, before any of the words? TRY Sit down with me. Two minutes of nothing at all before we start. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	PAUSE WITHOUT DISAPPEARING The last three arguments have ended with someone walking out. What could our line be, the one that means I am still here? TRY Can "I need the twenty" be ours? It means I am coming back. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	PAUSE WITHOUT DISAPPEARING The door has shut and somebody has started counting the minutes. What turns a pause into leaving, for me? TRY Not the leaving. The not knowing when. Give me a time and I can wait. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER
PAUSE WITHOUT DISAPPEARING Ten minutes into a break, and neither of you knows the rules. Do I want distance, or you nearby and quiet? If we are apart, what does still here look like? TRY Nearby and quiet. If we are not in the same place, a text at eight is enough. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	PAUSE WITHOUT DISAPPEARING One of you finds the waiting harder than the argument. What is the hardest part of waiting for you to come back? TRY I have the whole conversation without you, twice, and lose both. Come and find me before I do. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	PAUSE WITHOUT DISAPPEARING A closed door means far more to one of you than the other. In the house I grew up in, a closed door meant... TRY In my house it meant three days. I still hear a door that way. Say you are coming back and I will believe you. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER
PAUSE WITHOUT DISAPPEARING This has stopped being a conversation. Do I want to come back to this, or does it need to be over for tonight? TRY I am not continuing tonight. Not to punish you. I will tell you tomorrow whether I can. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	PAUSE WITHOUT DISAPPEARING You are on separate screens and one of you wants to hang up. When there is no room to walk out of, what does a pause look like for me? TRY Twenty minutes off the call, and one line from you at the end of it. That is enough to keep me here. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	PAUSE WITHOUT DISAPPEARING One of you wants it settled tonight and the other cannot get there. How long do I need before I can think, not just before I can speak? TRY A whole night. I am not shutting you out, I need longer than this. Ask me tomorrow and you will get a real answer. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

FIND A WAY BACK TO YOURSELF Everything you have been told to do is making it worse. The thing that actually brings me back is not... TRY Breathing exercises do nothing. Standing on the back step with a cold glass does. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	FIND A WAY BACK TO YOURSELF Reaching outside the relationship has started to feel like disloyalty. Who steadies me that is not you? TRY Ringin my sister is not going around you. It is what lets me come back. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	FIND A WAY BACK TO YOURSELF The argument has swallowed the whole day. Is there a place that knows my story? TRY Ten minutes at the river and the argument goes back to its actual size. Let me go and I will come back better. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER
FIND A WAY BACK TO YOURSELF One of you is hovering, wanting to help, guessing wrong. Right now: space, quiet company, movement, water, touch with consent, or a time to check in? TRY Quiet company. Stay in the room. Do not ask me anything yet. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	FIND A WAY BACK TO YOURSELF Something you have wanted for years, and tonight it feels safe to say it. What helps me that I have never asked for, because wanting it felt like too much? TRY Say my name. Just my name, with nothing after it. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	FIND A WAY BACK TO YOURSELF You are both still raw and the words are not landing. What is one small signal from you that tells my body I am safe here? TRY You lower your voice and sit down. Everything drops a level. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER
FIND A WAY BACK TO YOURSELF There is nothing left in the tank and the day is not over. What is available to me today, rather than on a good day? TRY Today I have about twenty minutes of talking in me. That is the real number. Spend it on whatever matters most to you. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	FIND A WAY BACK TO YOURSELF You have come back to the room but not to yourself. What one ordinary thing steadies me, even a little? TRY Warm hands and something to look at out of a window. Four minutes. Give me that and I can start properly with you. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	FIND A WAY BACK TO YOURSELF The fight is over and you are the one who cannot stop replaying it. What do I say to myself afterwards that I would never say to you? TRY I run it back all night and call myself a lot of names. I am telling you because I would rather you knew than guessed. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

REACH AGAIN The heat has gone out of it and something true is still waiting. One truth, and not the only truth. TRY I was frightened. That is the whole of it. Can we start there instead? PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	REACH AGAIN You meant well and it landed badly. I can hear the impact was ____. My intention was _____. Both matter. TRY It landed as not caring. I meant to give you room. That does not undo it. What do you need from me now? PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	REACH AGAIN You have apologised and it has not landed. What am I still not seeing? TRY Tell me the part I keep skipping past. I will sit still for it. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER
REACH AGAIN The argument is over and neither of you knows how to come back in. The thing that works on me while I am still cross... TRY Make me tea and say my name. That is the whole list. Use it. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	REACH AGAIN You have asked for everything, so nothing has been heard. What is the one thing I am asking for? And what would make it possible for you? TRY Sunday mornings back. What would you need on the Saturday for that? PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	REACH AGAIN Things are fine, and quietly thinner than they were. What used to make me feel chosen, and can I ask for it back? TRY You used to ring on the way home for no reason. I have missed it. Could we have that again? PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER
REACH AGAIN You are running the logistics well and the wanting has gone quiet. Being wanted is not the same as being needed. What does wanted feel like? TRY Needed is who handles the admin. Wanted is you looking up when I walk in. I would like more of the second. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	REACH AGAIN The doubt about whether this continues is in the room, unsaid. What is true right now, without deciding the whole future tonight? TRY I do not know what I want yet. I will not pretend to know, and I am not saying it to punish you. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	REACH AGAIN You have both been careful for weeks and nothing has been said. What is one thing I noticed this month and never said out loud? TRY You took the call from my mother so I did not have to. I noticed then and said nothing. I am saying it now. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WIDER FIELD You keep breaking a rule neither of you remembers agreeing to. What is the deal we made that we never actually said out loud? TRY I became the one who notices, you became the one who decides. Neither of us agreed to that. Can we redo it on purpose? PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	THE WIDER FIELD You are measuring yourselves against a template that was never yours. What did we have to invent, because nobody handed us the map? TRY We made up what an anniversary means for us. There was no version to copy. I am proud of that. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	THE WIDER FIELD There is a third voice in an argument that has two people in it. Who else is in this room? Family, kin, community, history. TRY The people who raised me are in every conversation we have about money. Help me hear when it is them and not you. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER
THE WIDER FIELD Your body has a rule the relationship has never been told. What does my body need from this relationship that we never talk about? TRY I cannot do hard conversations after nine. That is my body, not avoidance. Ask me at breakfast and you get all of me. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	THE WIDER FIELD One of you came home tense and it was never about anyone here. What I carry home from being watched all day is... TRY I do the check before I take your hand on that street. I come home tired, and it is not you I am tired of. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	THE WIDER FIELD Something is working and neither of you has words that fit it. What is something about how we love that we have never seen modelled? TRY Three of us making it ordinary. Nobody showed us that being boring and fine. I want us to say so out loud. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER
THE WIDER FIELD A quiet night, near the end of something, or the start of it. What map do we want to hand to a younger version of ourselves? TRY That you can want your freedom and someone to come home to. I want them to hear it from us. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	THE WIDER FIELD A decision about money has three families inside it. What am I obliged to, outside this relationship, that you have never been told about? TRY Money goes home every month and I cannot drop it. I should have said so years ago. Could we look at the real numbers? PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	THE WIDER FIELD You are out in some rooms and not in others. Where am I still choosing my words, and what does that cost me? TRY I am out everywhere except work, and I go quiet there all day. None of that is yours. I need you to know. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

Everything between you is logistics, and the last flirt was months ago.

The thing we used to do that was not sex and was not nothing..

TRY

You used to look at me from the doorway, not on the way to anything. I would like that back.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

One of you is keeping a count and the other one can feel it.

If we never counted again, what would I actually be asking for?

TRY

Not more often. Better. One hour that neither of us is getting through. Can we aim at that instead?

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

One of you needs to feel close before sex and the other gets close through it.

Does closeness come before wanting for me, after it, or somewhere else?

TRY

I need to feel met first and you arrive the other way around. Neither of us is wrong. Could we make room for both?

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

You are arguing about how often, and it was never really about how often.

What is sex actually for me: comfort, reassurance, excitement, being chosen, escape?

TRY

Mostly reassurance. So a no lands bigger than it is. That is mine to carry, and I would rather say it than leak it.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

You have been waiting to feel like it, and it has not arrived.

What am I like when the wanting turns up after we have started, rather than before?

TRY

I almost never feel like it beforehand. Give me a slow start, let stopping be as easy as starting, and I am willing to begin.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

The sex you are having is not the sex either of you would choose.

What would make it worth wanting, and not just worth agreeing to?

TRY

Unhurried, and you saying what you like out loud. That is most of it. Could we try the unhurried one this week?

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

You are both chasing something extraordinary and getting nothing at all.

What would good enough look like for us this month?

TRY

Good enough might be unhurried, nobody around, nowhere to be after. I would rather aim there than somewhere we cannot reach. What is yours?

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

Touch arrives and your body reads it as too much before it reads anything else.

What does my body have to get past before touch is pleasure and not noise?

TRY

The overhead light, and noise I cannot switch off. It is the room, not you. Change the room with me and let us see.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

Neither of you has started anything in months and you are both waiting.

What does it cost me to be the one who asks?

TRY

A no sits in me for a week, so I stopped asking. That part is mine. Tell me you would not mind being asked.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

One of you says what they would prefer and the other one hears a verdict.

When I ask for something different, what am I afraid it lands as?

TRY

I am afraid it lands as you failing. It is not that. Let me say the next one badly and stay while I do.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

Touch has come to mean that something is expected next.

Could we have time where nothing has to happen beyond being here?

TRY

An hour with nothing on the table, not even a good outcome. Even the awkward parts would tell us something. Try it with me once.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

One of you wants it in the diary and the other one hears a demand.

If we set time aside, what are we actually agreeing to turn up for?

TRY

The time, not the outcome. No phones, nobody else around, nothing required. Would you put it in the diary with me?

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

The body is present and the attention has gone somewhere else.

Where do I go, and what would bring me back?

TRY

I drift. Sometimes it is the sameness and sometimes something older. Change one thing and say my name. If I am still gone, we stop.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

One of you has been managing the other one all week.

Who has been carrying the remembering lately, and what has that done to how I reach for you?

TRY

I have held the reminders and the checking all week. I cannot cross from that into wanting. That is the load. Who carries what?

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

You have both been guessing for years and getting it slightly wrong.

What is one thing I like that I have never said out loud?

TRY

I never told you because it felt like a lot to ask. It is not. Ask me twice and I will get it out.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

Something about sex feels loaded and neither of you put it there.

What did I learn about bodies and pleasure long before I met you?

TRY

Nobody in my house ever said any of this out loud. Be slow with me, and take my no as real.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

One of you is getting there alone and together it has gone quiet.

What do I get on my own that I would like to have with you as well?

TRY

Quiet, and nothing to work out. That is not a complaint about you. I would like to bring some of it into what we do.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING

A no has arrived and the room has gone cold.

Is stopping allowed here without a reason and without a mood?

TRY

I want to say no and still be warm with you after. Tell me what you need when I do, and I will say mine.

PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER

THE WANTING Wanting has started to feel like a debt one of you owes. Was my last yes one I meant, or one that kept the peace? TRY Some of them kept the peace. I would rather you had a real yes. Make my no as easy as my yes. PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	THE WANTING One of you has landed somewhere the other one keeps trying to solve. What if this is not a problem to fix but a fact to plan around? TRY Sex is not where I am, and it may not change. It is not a punishment. Can we talk about the rest? PASS IS A WHOLE ANSWER	THE WANTING A body has changed and the old script does not fit it. What does my body want now, rather than what it used to want? TRY It is different and it is not less. I do not want to keep performing the old version. Let me show you this one. Where this comes from Seventy five cards, built in my practice, for the couples I actually sit with.

Most of what gets written about love assumes two people, a closed door, and a script everybody was handed. None of that held up in the room. So the deck was built the other way round: for relationships with more than two people in them, for people who are out in some rooms and not others, for bodies that do not all work the same way, and for couples who do not live in the same house.

Polyvagal language is used here as a compassionate organising map, not a diagnosis or a literal test of how a nerve is working. Nothing on these cards is a measurement of anybody.

The seventh stripe

Gilbert Baker's original 1978 flag had eight stripes, and hot pink sat at the top of it. Every stripe carried a word. Hot pink's word was sex. The six stripe flag most of us grew up under does not have it. This deck puts it back, and gives it a suit.

A pause has a return plan. Silence used to punish, frighten or control is not a pause.

Country is relationship, not a wellness prop. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people can define cultural connection for themselves. If this is not your cultural practice, stay with your own everyday relationship with place without borrowing ceremony or language that is not yours.

The deck runs online too

The same 75 cards, free and open to anyone, with the parts paper cannot do: deal three and choose one, a two minute clock, a private list you each mark where only what you both said yes to is shown, and a way to ask a card again in six months.
